

Supporting Ranger Teams

Indigenous rangers feel pride when they put on their uniforms and work on country.

By integrating traditional knowledge & contemporary best practice, Indigenous rangers are at the heart of managing, protecting and conserving the natural beauty & uniqueness of the Australian desert country.

Investing in established and emerging ranger groups leads to significant ecological, social and cultural benefits. This includes employment, learning and training opportunities, strengthening Indigenous culture & knowledge, engaging in partnerships with non-government and government organisations, and the creation of new income streams.

ENHANCES INDIGENOUS LIVELIHOODS

Increased connection to country

Increased empowerment

Increased employment

Develop sustainable, diverse income streams

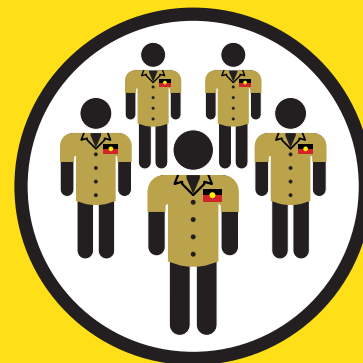

BUILDS ENVIRONMENTAL RESILIENCE

More land under management

Increased knowledge of threatened species

More people trained in land management

Increased learning, sharing & exchange